COURSE OVERVIEW

As the incidence of melanoma continues to rise rapidly in the United States and around the world, the need to educate clinicians from various specialties on the disease also increases. During this course nationally recognized experts will present information on prevention, risk assessment, early detection, genetic factors, and current and future treatment choices for melanoma patients. Issues concerning surgical management, adjuvant therapy, advanced disease therapy, and personalizing the course of treatment for individual patients will also be discussed. This course is designed to provide information that will help clinicians in their decision making regarding these difficult patient problems. The course will be taught by a wide range of experts as this most serious of skin cancers will require multidisciplinary efforts to conquer.

Conference Highlights

- Plenary talks from nationally recognized experts
- Case presentations and expert discussion
- Ample question and answer time with course faculty
- Networking opportunities among colleagues
- Conference app with access to course materials and recordings from the convenience of your mobile device or computer

Educational Objectives

After attending this activity, participants should be able to:

- Demonstrate how newly discovered, evidence-based scientific information applies to the current practice of clinical dermatology.
- Describe the epidemiology and risk factors associated with the increasing incidence of cutaneous melanoma.
- Identify possible genetic mutations and etiologic factors in the melanoma patient and diagnose patients based on dermatologic manifestations.
- Incorporate early diagnostic techniques, including dermoscopy, into practice.
- Determine appropriate treatment options for patients with basal cell carcinoma, melanonychia, and ocular melanoma.
- Examine current data and new strategies for the prevention of melanoma.
- Evaluate and diagnose a variety of malignancies related to melanoma skin cancer.
- Incorporate new therapies and treatment modalities for advanced melanoma patients including surgical techniques.
- Navigate the medico-legal aspects of caring for the melanoma patient.
