

SCRIPPS HEALTH/SCRIPPS CLINIC BIO-REPOSITORY AND BIO-INFORMATICS CORE

Erin Burgess
Research Assistant

Erin Burgess graduated, with honors, from Sacred Heart University in 2023, earning a biology degree with a minor in chemistry. She completed the program in three years. During that time, she worked with faculty to initiate a study to examine the link between gender, coaching and collegiate athletic burnout. The work has been accepted as a poster for the Eastern Psychology Association and as a presentation for the International Conference on Sport & Society. Additionally, Erin worked as an emergency department scribe for two years during her time in college, observing and documenting hundreds of hours of medical treatment.

After graduating, she returned to San Diego and joined the Scripps Bio-Repository and Bio-Informatics Core team. At the bio-repository, she aids in sample processing, data collection, and patient outreach.
