

Maternal Health Fellows 2023-2024

Arienne Malekmadani, MD
UCSF School of Medicine
Scripps Chula Vista Family Medicine Residency Program, class of 2023

Arienne grew up in the Bay Area and was raised by a loving and goofy family of Iranian immigrants.

After college, she worked for the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and various community health organizations in NYC. Her work in public health inspired her commitment to integrating clinical care with systems change. Arienne then returned to the Bay Area to study medicine at UCSF and join the PRIME-US family. Her time at UCSF focused on partnering with marginalized communities and promoting primary care through her work with White Coats 4 Black Lives, Primary Care Progress, PRIME and the Society for Women in Medicine. She was awarded the Vanderryn and MacKenzie Awards for primary care.

In residency, Arienne was part of the Maternal Health Area of Concentration and resident leader for RPrIDE (Residents Promoting Inclusion, Diversity and Equity). She was awarded a grant through the Scripps Center for Health Equity and the inaugural Lemon Grove-McKennett award for her work reducing bias in maternal toxicology testing practices. She is excited to be able to continue this important work and further her passion for women's health and reproductive justice during her Maternal Health fellowship.

In her free time, Arienne enjoys the beach and ocean, spending quality time with her loved ones, reading novels and enjoying various combinations of bread and cheese.

Nery Guerrero, MD
Contra Costa Family Medicine Residency Program, class of 2023

Nery is proud to be a First-Gen Grad, Mexican-American, and a Latina in Medicine. She calls The Rio Grande Valley in South Texas home. She came to California searching for family medicine training as well as reproductive health and abortion training and found another home in CCRMC. Now, she is excited to be part of the Chula Vista family to continue to learn, train and teach what she is passionate about. Her areas of interest are in mental health, reproductive justice and, of course, prenatal care.

In her free time, she enjoys running with good music in the background, writing, and dancing cumbias and bachata. But most evenings, she is hanging out with her dogs or watching shows while enjoying chips.
